The image shows the Portugol Webstudio IDE interface. At the top, there is a dark blue header bar with the application name 'Portugol Webstudio' on the left and a tab bar on the right containing three tabs labeled 'Sem título' (Untitled) and a plus icon for a new tab. On the far left, a vertical sidebar contains several icons: a play button (run), a square (stop), a document with a magnifying glass (search), a folder (file explorer), a share icon, a question mark (help), and a gear (settings). The main workspace is a large dark gray area where the code is written. The code is in Portugol and consists of five lines: a 'programa' block opening, a 'funcao inicio()' block opening, a call to 'escreva("Hello World")', the 'funcao inicio()' block closing, and the 'programa' block closing. Line numbers 1 through 6 are visible on the left side of the code editor. At the bottom of the IDE, there is a dark gray status bar. It displays the output 'Hello World' and a message 'Programa finalizado. Tempo de execução: 15 milissegundos' (Program finished. Execution time: 15 milliseconds). A small progress indicator with six dots is also visible in the center of the status bar.
